* Records in New Jersey regarding Noble Tracy's birth date vary considerably, placing his birth between 1824 and 1840. When Noble married for a third time in 1880 to Mary (Higgins) Peacock he listed his parents as "Noble Tracy" and "Mary Anne Gillon." Records in Ireland, however, show that he was likely born in 1826 to Noble Tracy and his second wife Jane Nowland (aka Knowls); Mary Anne Gillon was his father's third wife, thus his step-mother. More information may be found under (32) and (33) for Noble Tracy, Jane (Nowland) Tracy and Mary Anne (Gillon) Tracy.

Noble Tracy served in New Jersey's First Regiment, Light Artillery: This Battery was originally organized as a part of the Militia force of the State, and was attached to the Third Regiment, Hudson Brigade. It remained in this connection until the breaking out of the Rebellion in 1861, when the services of the Battery were tendered to the Governor of this State, but by reason of no authority having been received for the acceptance of this branch of the service, their offer was declined. Its organization was continued and recruited up to the full standard, and waited only an opportunity to enter the service. In this they were at last successful, having been accepted under the provisions of an Act of Congress, approved July 22, 1861, and by authority received by the Governor from the War Department, Washington, D. C., dated July 29, 1861. The Battery was then organized and completed under the requirements of General Orders No. 16, War Department, Adjutant General's Office, Washington, D. C., May 4, 1861. It was fully completed, officered and equipped by the 12th day of August, 1861, at which time it was mustered into the service of the United States for three years or during the war, at Hoboken, New Jersey, by Frederick S. Larned, Captain Twelfth Infantry, United States Army, the strength of the Battery being - Officers, 5; Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates, 151. Total, 156. It left the State August 20, 1861, en route to Washington, D. C. Soon after arrival it was furnished with the necessary outfit of guns, horses and equipments, and under orders crossed into Virginia, having been assigned to the First New Jersey Brigade. On the 16th of October, 1862, by reason of the disbandment of Company K, First Regiment, Infantry, the greater part of the enlisted men of that Company joined the Battery by transfer. Under the provisions of General Orders No. 191, War Department, Adjutant General's Office, Washington, D. C., June 25, 1863, a number of the enlisted men re-enlisted in the field for three years or during the war. Those who did not re-enlist and whose term of service having expired, reported at Trenton, N. J., in compliance with Special Orders No. 213, Paragraph 2, Head Quarters Army of the Potomac, August 9, 1864, and were mustered out August 18, 1864, by George B. Eckert, First Lieutenant Third Infantry, United States Army. At different times during the years 1862, 1863 and 1864, the strength of the Battery was increased by the joining from Draft Rendezvous, Trenton, N. J., of a large number of recruits and some substitutes. The Battery continued its organization and remained in active service until the close of the war, when it was mustered out at Trenton, N. J., June 22, 1865, by R. Burnett Smith, Brevet Captain Eleventh Infantry, United States Army, in compliance with General Orders No. 105, War Department, Adjutant General's Office, Washington, D. C., June 2, 1865.

The Battery was first attached to the Defences of Washington, D. C.; then to an Artillery Brigade, Franklin's Division, Army of the Potomac; then to an Artillery Brigade, First Division, Army of the Potomac; then to an Artillery Brigade, First Division, Sixth Army Corps; then to an Artillery Brigade, Sixth Army Corps; then to the Fourth Brigade, Volunteer Division, Artillery Reserve, Army of the Potomac; then to the Fourth Brigade, Artillery Reserve, Army of the Potomac; then to the Third Brigade, Artillery Reserve, Army of the Potomac; then to the First Brigade, Artillery Reserve, Army of the Potomac; then to the Second Brigade, Artillery Reserve, Army of the Potomac; then to an Artillery Brigade, Sixth Army Corps.

Possibly others; the records of Ss. Michael and John and very incomplete between 1832 and 1852.

* It is extremely probable, yet not conclusively proven, that the Noble Tracy christened in 1790 in Birr, County Kings, Ireland as the son of Edward Tracy and Mary Prescott is the same Noble Tracy that ended up in County Dublin, Ireland, and fathered the immigrant Noble Tracy of Newark, New Jersey. This would mean:

- 1) The family moved from County Kings to Dublin soon after this birth of Anne Jane Tracy in 1819; and
- 2) The family converted from Church of Ireland (Protestant) to Roman Catholicism, or the family was always Catholic and their baptisms were records in a Church of Ireland record book (which there is precedent for during this time period).

Either of these is possible, and is further supported by:

- 1) The extreme rarity of the first names Noble and Jemima;
- 2) No additional records of Noble and Jemima were found in County Offaly after 1819; and
- 3) The fact that Edward and Mary (Prescott) had an older son, Simon Tracy (1775), who removed to Dublin and was married in a Roman Catholic Church (Ss. Michael and John RC Church, the same church Noble was found) in 1809.
